Winner of 2014-2015 Prize for
Best Research in Health & Society at UW-Madison:

This award is designed to call attention to scholarship published by faculty and/or academic staff during calendar year 2014 that addresses aspects of population health or health and society, broadly defined, such as addressing the multiple determinants of health (e.g., biological, medical, behavioral, social, economic and environmental) and their important interactions over the life course; examining the measurement, distribution, or experiences of health; or evaluating interventions (at individual, community, or policy levels) for their impact on population health outcomes. This year's competition saw many impressive nominations that suggest scholarship on health and society topics at UW-Madison is vibrant across the campus.
